DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1 and 2 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 1, lines 9 and 15, "forth end portions" should be --fourth end portions--; in claim 2, line 7, "forth end portion" should be --fourth end portion--.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ollikainen et al (US Patent 6,552,686).

Ollikainen et al disclose, in figure 1, an antenna apparatus used for a radio communication device comprising a conductive plate 5, a main line antenna element 20 located parallel to the conductive plate and having a first end portion 22 and a second end portion 24 extending in a direction perpendicular to the direction of the first end portion, a feeding point 14 coupled to the first end portion, a parasitic line antenna 30 located parallel to the conductive plate and having third and fourth end portions for being electrostatically coupled with the main antenna element, and wherein first end portion of the main line antenna element is closer to the parasitic line antenna than the second end portion.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ollikainen et al in view of Kawahata et al (US 5,861,854).

The patent to Ollikainen et al, described above, differs from the claimed invention because it does not disclose the antenna apparatus formed on a resin substrate. Kawahata et al shows, in figure 1, an antenna element 2 formed on a resin substrate 1, see column 3, lines 1-5. Since one of ordinary skill in the art would have recognized the benefits of rigidly holding the antenna apparatus on the ground plane, it would have been obvious to provide the antenna apparatus of Ollikainen et al with a resin substrate as taught by Kawahata et al.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 2 recites the third end portion oriented in opposite direction of the first end portion, claim 6 recites the feed point located at equal distances from the third and fourth end portions which formed open ends. The patent to Ollikainen et al does not teach these limitations.

7. The patents to Kawahata et al, Kazakai et al, Johnson et al, and Ying et al are cited as of interest showing the antenna similar to that disclosed.
